

INDUSTRIES

Architects & Engineers

Our experienced attorneys are often retained by insurance companies to represent the interests of architects and engineers.

Defending professional liability claims against architects and engineers requires a high level technical sophistication and attention to detail. Our team of professional liability attorneys has the experience to navigate the technical aspects of such claims at all stages of the construction process. We use our technical knowledge and our litigation skills to effectively articulate otherwise complex concepts which enhance our ability to successfully defend clients. Whether the case involves extension property damages, personal injury, or code violations, our team has the ability to provide efficient and effective defenses to architects and engineers.