

INDUSTRIES

Transportation

Our practices are founded on a thorough understanding of our trucking and transportation clients' businesses, as well the complex regulatory structure that governs the industry.

We defend commercial transportation litigation matters for clients in the trucking industry and represent international transportation and logistics companies and small local businesses in dealing with all aspects of transportation litigation, including catastrophic personal injury and property damage claims. We advise trucking companies and their owners on a wide range of legal issues that businesses and business owners regularly face.